DAILY LEADER

Rev. moncure D Coowny on President MR. LINCOLN AS A PUBLIC SPEAKER. "His manner of speaking in public was simple, direct, and almost religious; he was occasionally humerous, but rately told an-ecdotes as he did in private conversation; and there was no sarcasm, no showing of the teeth. I had not listened to him long, on the occasion to which I refer, before I perceived that there was a certain artistic stillty in him as a public speaker, which his audience would least recognize when it was most employed. Early in the address some adverse aliusion to slavery branght a surge of heave, when it broke at his feet, there was the play of a smile on his face as he substred from it the investment of the substrate of the he gathered from it the important knowledge of the exact proportion of Kentucky which he had to deal with on the occasion.

I have often wondered that Mr. Lincoln's SPECIAL BARCAINS IN power as an orator—surpassed as it was by that of only one other American—is so little known or thought of in Europe; and I have even found the impression that he was, as a speaker, awkward, heavy and ungrammatical. It is a singular mirjudgment. For terse, well-pronounced, clear speech; for a careful and easy selection of the fit word for the right place; for perfect tones; for quiet, chaste and dignified manner—in

would be hard to find the late President's superior.

"He said, with an emphasis which made the proposition seem novel, 'Slavery is wrong!'—then came the biss. After a moment's pause he continued—each word driven through and clenched—'1 acknowledge that you must maintain your opposi tion just there if at all. But I find that every man comes into the world with a mouth to be fed and a back to be clothed; that each has also two hands; and I infer Henry Clay, pray that his tongue might cleave to the roof of his mouth ere it woted threat excesses or Self Abore, or some consists to carry alavery into any territory where the self discovery services the inflator of the treatment of Seufral Drivery, Sernal, and Service Messack, who will send free in all, the following valuable work, is made successory: gasied survices:

Advertiser,] The conspiracy trial drags its weary length along, and a smart young Boston reporter who has been a constant attendant, declared yestereay evening as he left the hot court-room, that 'the evidence is runnin' emptins." This is understood to be the Yankee term for the yeasty less which are left in the bottom of a beer barrel, neither good to drink nor useful in any way. It is supposed, however, that Judge Holt has in reserve some important testi-mony for the presecution. The "base of operations," it will be remembered, is Mr. Secretary Stanton's official announcement in a letter to Charles Francis Adams, immediately after the commission of the great crime, in these words:

"The murderer of the President has been discovered, and evidence obtained that these horrible crimes were committed in these horrible crimes were committed in execution of a conspiracy deliberately planned and set on foot by rebels, under pretence of avenging the South and siding the rebel cause; but it is expected that the immediate perpetrators will be caught."

On Tuesday, May 16th, when Legutenant Colonel Appear was avanished to the ant Colonel Conger was examined for the prosecution, he gave a minute and detailed account of the pursuit, capture and death of Booth, in which he said: "I then took what things were in his pockets, and tied them up in a piece of paper. When the win see had concluded his narration, Judge Advecate Burnett produced a file, a pipe and some bills of exchange, which Colonel Conger identified as having been taken from Booth's pockets— He was not posi-tive about some cartridges, also shown him, or a spur, but said that he "turned the spur over to Mr. Stanton, and it that is the spur that has been in his Department, it history can be easily traced." Why did not the The BUCKEYE superactes all other Machines.

have been saked: "What articles did you take from Booth F" This question was the more pertinent, as it had been stated by the newep per re-porters who wrote accounts of the assamin's death, that aut graphic evidence was found on Booth's body. It has been currently reported here also, and never denied, that the assessin kept a diary in which he chronicled his crime and his Bight, which diary was taken to the War Department.
